

Name: _____

Book Title: _____

From Book to Classroom Bridge

You're going to build a Book-to-Classroom Bridge. The idea is to think beyond just your story – imagine how your book could come alive in a classroom.

In the first column, write down your book's big ideas – themes, emotional takeaways, or curriculum tie-ins. Maybe it's about courage, friendship, ecosystems, or identity. In the second column, think like a teacher. What could students do or talk about after reading your book? Maybe they could write letters, create art, build something, or explore a real-world topic. In the third column, think about how you can make that classroom connection easier. Could you create a quick Google Slide deck? A one-page printable? A discussion guide or QR code with links to activities?

By the time you are done brainstorming, you'll see exactly how your story becomes a teaching tool – and why classroom-friendly materials are such a game changer!

My Book's Big Ideas (themes, SEL topics, curriculum tie-ins)	What Students Can Explore (skills, projects, discussions)	How I Can Support Teachers (printable worksheets, slide deck, discussion guide, QR code, etc.)